Simulation course for trainee paediatricians

Simulation Centre, Addenbrooke's Hospital
27th March, 12th June, 29th August,
4th October, 6th December 2012,

A one-day course for trainees in paediatrics

This course is a new development at Addenbrooke's Simulation Centre. Paediatrics is an ideal field for simulation and with the advancement in technology, high quality neonatal and paediatric manikins are now in use. Consultants from acute paediatric specialties act as faculty for delegates.

The course covers a wide range of paediatric emergency situations, teaching both clinical skills and management strategies in a simulated environment.

The course includes:

- Introduction to the simulated environment
- Exposure to simulated paediatric and neonatal emergencies
- Debrief/feedback sessions

Registration fee: £170

Cheques made payable to "Addenbrooke's NHS Trust"

The course is free to attend for East of England Deanery Regional Paediatric Trainees. A deposit cheque of £50 (made payable to "Addenbrooke's NHS Trust") is required to book your place. This will be returned to you on the day, or cashed in the event of non attendance.
